

Deshika Van Hagt
JARDI AND ITS JARS.

Abstract:

This short presentation will cover a Sri Lankan culinary art cuisine that is fast dying out. It is the preservation of fish. I will cover preparations, regions and the vessels, and their origins.

Biography:

Deshika Van Hagt has a B.A. in Political Science and English Literature from Eastern Washington University in the USA. She has lived and worked in the USA for forty years, and has worked as Gallery Director for Limestone press gallery that was a publishing house for fine art prints and Livre des Artists. These books were made from hand made paper and hand bound, with hand set typing and fine art prints. The press published some of the best known artists and writers from America, South America and Europe. She has worked at a T.V. Station that is a PBS affiliate to University of South Florida where was a writer and assistant producer for a science based series.
Email: tropicopolitan2@gmail.com